EDUCATION.

ADDRESS BY PROFESSOR CRAPSHAW.

Under the auspices of the Burnley and Edentool Progress Committee, Professor J. J. Crapshaw, of the Melbourne University, delivered an informative address at the Burnley Public School on Tuesday.

After referring to the unique features of the university, Professor Crapshaw stressed the importance of education in the development of the individual. He spoke of the need for a curriculum that balanced practical skills with theoretical knowledge. Crapshaw also highlighted the role of education in fostering a sense of community and social responsibility.

He concluded his address with a call for the continued support of education, both from within the community and from government. "We must invest in education," he said, "for it is the key to the future of our society."
