The University.

Forty Years of Progress.

Reminiscences of Mr. C. R. Hodge, Registrar of the University of Sydney.

Last year, after 40 years of service, Mr. C. R. Hodge, Registrar of the University of Sydney, retired owing to ill health, to retire. The news was received with deep regret by the students, the staff, and the general public; but all will be glad to know that his rest has done wonders for his health, and that beyond expectation. The leave of absence granted to him expired on February 25.

During the past, Mr. Hodge filled the position of Registrar during the last three years. He has been Registrar and the preceding eight years of service to the University, and by his industry and sagacity, has added much to the material and moral resources of the institution. He is a man of strong character, and his presence has been felt in the Council and the Senate, and his influence has been felt throughout the University. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.

The University has been fortunate in having had the services of such a man for so many years. He has been a faithful servant, and his work has been a Source of great comfort to all who have had occasion to come into contact with him. He has been in close connection with the University for 40 years, and his services have been highly appreciated by all who have had occasion to come into contact with him.