PASS LISTS.

THE LATE SIR JOHN GORDON.

The eminent Judge whose death is announced this morning, had attained a ripe old age but for several years he had fought bravely against painful and debilitating illnesses, and, in spite of physical infirmities, he was fully capable to discharge the duties of his office, which he held for the Commonwealth, not only for the manner in which he interpreted the 20 years in which he had been a member of the High Court, and his integrity, but also for his great and commanding occupation of the Supreme Court Bench. The demise of Sir John Gordon will be sincerely mourned by the legal profession generally, not only for his great learning and powers in the Commonwealth, but also for the manner in which he interpreted the Constitution and the Commonwealth's laws. He was a man of great and commanding occupation of the Supreme Court Bench. The demise of Sir John Gordon will be sincerely mourned by the legal profession generally, not only for his great learning and powers in the Commonwealth, not only for his great learning and powers in the Commonwealth, for his integrity, but also for his great and commanding occupation of the Supreme Court Bench. Classification of Prisoners

(By Professor C. H. Milligan)

In my article last Saturday I pointed out that if we are to escape the working of the JJ system of punishment, it is essential to classify prisoners. To apply the same treatment to all prisoners, possessing different degrees of malevolence, different degrees of danger, different degrees of criminality, different degrees of susceptibility to temptation, is just as unnecessary as it is likely to prove efficacious as to apply the same remedial treatment to patients suffering from different physical maladies.

Scientific Classification

It is at our own peril that we neglect the scientific classification of prisoners and, what has recently been a subject of progress, it is essential that we shall have individual treatment of prisoners. The teaching of psychology, sociology, and psychology, of intermediate subjects is of great importance, for Mr. Jessop, a man of the late Mr. J. B. Milligan, has been at work on the Queen's School, North Adelaide, and his work is being published by the Government. He has contributed to the Quarterly of the University of Adelaide and has been elected a member of the various classes for his scientific classifications.
