Mr. F. L. Thyser Selected.

The Rhodes Selection Committee for South Africa met at Government House on Monday morning to select the Rhodes scholar for 1924.

The candidature of Mr. F. L. Thyser, of 9 Witherden Street, Waverley, was successful, after consideration, chosen Mr. Frederick Lewes, of 9 Witherden Street, Waverley, as the new Rhodes scholar who will proceed to London in October 1924.

A Successful Career.

Mr. Thyser was born on November 10, 1907, and has attended Miss Stone's School as a boarder, and as a junior pupil. He entered the Waverley Public School in 1920, and in 1921 obtained his qualifying diploma in mathematics and the first position in the school. He then entered the Sydenham High School, and in 1922 passed the Senior Public Examination with merit in English, mathematics, and classics. In 1923 he was successful in the Senior Public Examination in English, mathematics, and classics.

Four teachers have earned the degree of Master of Arts, 10 will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and 4 will receive the diploma in Economics and Political Science, and 3 will have the diploma in Bookkeepeing. The number of successful candidates at the University of South Africa in 1924 is 10.

At the University of South Africa, there is a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Economics, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in economics and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of economic principles and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Commerce, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in commerce and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of business and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Law, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in law and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of law and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Science, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in science and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of science and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Arts, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in arts and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of arts and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Music, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in music and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of music and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Education, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in education and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of education and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in divinity and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of divinity and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Theology, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in theology and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of theology and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Law, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in law and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of law and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Science, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in science and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of science and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Arts, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in arts and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of arts and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Music, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in music and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of music and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Education, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in education and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of education and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in divinity and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of divinity and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.

At the University of South Africa, there is also a new degree, the degree of Bachelor of Theology, which was established in 1923. The degree is awarded to candidates who have completed a course of study in theology and have passed the examinations set by the University. The degree is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the principles of theology and the ability to apply these principles to real-world situations.