ROMANCE OF RESEARCH

Students’ Greatest Pleasure

PROBLEMS FOR THE LEAGUE

(By Professor Coleman Pemberton)

Some two or three weeks ago, LaRue announced in a cable from London that a new league of nations problems relating chiefly to the interpretation of the League of Nations. The Leagues in various parts of the world have been attempting to find solutions, and one of these, the African, has been particularly active. In this African, the problem is to find a way of settling disputes peacefully. If they can do this, it will be a great step forward in the peaceful settlement of disputes.

It is natural that Prof. Archibald Strong should be a persuasive man, for his father was Professor of Chemistry at the Hebrew University for many years, before he retired to the chair at Liverpool.

Educated at Selby School, he went on to the university where he obtained a B.A. and, after a year's work at the Home Office, was appointed to the chair at Liverpool, an appointment which is the highest in the University system.

Dr. Strong is a man of great experience and has written extensively on the subject. He has been a member of the Royal Society, and has contributed many papers to scientific journals. His work has earned him a high reputation among his colleagues.

The first task is to find a subject on which one can concentrate previous experience. Before the war that was going on at the time one had to be careful. Now that the subject has been chosen, the next step is to find the contemporary, and this is often found in the archives. The student must not only read the published papers, but also consult the correspondence of the persons involved.

Dr. Strong is a man of great experience and has written extensively on the subject. He has been a member of the Royal Society, and has contributed many papers to scientific journals. His work has earned him a high reputation among his colleagues.

BETTER HANDWRITING

By the election of a hand-scribbled hand to fill official documents has been made much easier. This has been a great help to the government in the matter of correspondence. The new system is much safer and more convenient than the old system, in which the hand of the scribe was often illegible.

For many years Prof. Strong has been a literary critic for the "Hamburgh" and "Bohn" and his articles and opinions are looked forward to by a host of readers across the Commonwealth. He is also an ardent supporter of the League of Nations, and his book "On the Art of Living" has been well received.

Dr. Strong is a man of great experience and has written extensively on the subject. He has been a member of the Royal Society, and has contributed many papers to scientific journals. His work has earned him a high reputation among his colleagues.

The first task is to find a subject on which one can concentrate previous experience. Before the war that was going on at the time one had to be careful. Now that the subject has been chosen, the next step is to find the contemporary, and this is often found in the archives. The student must not only read the published papers, but also consult the correspondence of the persons involved.

Dr. Strong is a man of great experience and has written extensively on the subject. He has been a member of the Royal Society, and has contributed many papers to scientific journals. His work has earned him a high reputation among his colleagues.