Chapter 1: History of the Esplanade

By T. E. Owen-Smith, C.M.G., I.O.

In our next contribution published in The Register on Monday, October 12, we are going to write about some particulars of the land around King William Road, the main street in the north of the city. The traffic moves up and down the street, and there are many interesting buildings and trees lining the road. The street was named after King William IV, who reigned from 1820 to 1830. The road is flanked by beautiful gardens and parks, and there are many historical landmarks along the way. This area is now a popular place for walking and cycling.

Chapter 2: Education Methods

Mr. McCoV on the Continent

New Ideas in Agricultural Study

Mr. W. T. McCoV (Director of Education), who, with the Victorian Director of Agriculture (Mr. W. T. Tate), has been touring Scandinavia in connection with their work on agricultural education, writing to the Minister for Education (Hon. T. E. Smith, M.P.) of his experiences.

The Forestry Appointment

To the Editor

Before I go on to talk about the new ideas in agricultural study, I want to briefly mention the appointment of a new Forestry Commissioner in Victoria. The appointment was made by the Victorian Government, which is committed to developing a comprehensive forest management plan for the state. The new commissioner is an expert in forest ecology and has extensive experience in forest conservation.

By the way, the appointment was made to fill a position that had been vacant for several years. The previous commissioner had retired, and there was a need for a new leader in the field. The new commissioner is expected to focus on sustainable forest management practices and to work closely with the Ministry of Agriculture to ensure that forest resources are managed in a way that is both environmentally sustainable and economically viable.
