IN PAPUA.

DEVELOPING THE NATIVE RACE.

GOVERNMENT PLANTATION SCHEME.

In Papua, the Government are establishing native plantations. They are instructing the natives how to take care of and develop the land in their own interests.

"I have no cook and have nobody to talk to," said Mr. James, Head Man of the plantation. "I am an Anthropologist of the Papuans, who is learning their language and customs. I am trying to teach them how to take care of the land and to cultivate it for their own benefit.

"We have no money and no food, but we are learning to produce our own food. We are learning to cultivate the land and to produce our own food."

Where Act is at Fault

The Commonwealth has given 14 different methods of selecting a paper company. One of these is to pay a bonus of £5 to the company which will agree to take all the paper produced by the company. This has been done by the Commonwealth, as it is in the best interests of the country.

Mr. Claude Joseph Phillips, who is a member of the Department of Trade and Customs, has suggested that the Commonwealth should give priority to companies which will agree to take all the paper produced in the country.

EVIDENCE OF HISTORY.

It was a sad day when the last paper mill in the country closed down. This mill was the last of its kind in Papua and it was closed down because of the competition from the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth has been able to compete with the local paper mills because of its large scale production and lower costs.

The Commonwealth Government has been successful in developing a large scale paper industry, which is now producing more paper than any other country in the world. This has been made possible by the use of modern machinery and the use of local raw materials.

PROF. R. W. CHAPMAN

Mr. C. J. Phillips

The Commonwealth decided to take a lead to show the world how it is able to compete with the local paper mills. This has been achieved by the use of modern machinery and the use of local raw materials.
