Evils in Democracy

The American people are becoming increasingly aware of the evils of democracy. One of the most serious evils is the lack of accountability. In a democracy, citizens are given the power to elect their leaders. However, these leaders are not always accountable to the people. They may act in their own interests rather than in the interests of the public. This can lead to corruption and abuse of power.

Democracy must be upheld

The American people must support their democracy. They must participate in the political process by voting and holding their leaders accountable. They must also educate themselves about the issues and how they will affect their lives. By standing up for their democracy, the American people can ensure that it is a force for good in the world.
