Melbourne University
Chair of Economics Filled

ProF. COPLAND'S CAREER

Douglas Barry Copland, the present librarian of the University of Melbourne, has been appointed to the newly established chair of economics at the University of Melbourne. The position is a temporary one, and the appointment is for a period of three years. Dr. Copland is a native of New Zealand, and has been a resident of Melbourne for many years. He has been associated with various educational institutions in the city, and has held several important positions in the field of education. His appointment to the chair of economics is an indication of the importance which the University of Melbourne attaches to the study of economics.

Tragic Art and Melodrama: Professor Strong's Lecture

The difference between tragic and melodramatic art is a difficult one to define. From the point of view of the performer, the two types of art are often difficult to distinguish. In this lecture, Professor Strong of the University of Melbourne will explore the differences between the two types of art, and will discuss the role of the performer in bringing them to life. He will also discuss the differences between the two types of art, with particular attention to the differences in the way in which they are performed.

Professor J. A. Prescott, M.B., who assisted in this work, is a member of the University staff. He is also a member of the University's drama department, and has been associated with the University's drama society for many years. His assistance in this work is greatly appreciated.

Conservatorium Concerts: To Be Broadcasted Shortly

A concert is to be broadcasted shortly by the Conservatorium of Music, and is expected to be of great interest to students of music. The concert will be conducted by Professor A. B. White, one of the leading conductors of the city, and will feature a number of classical works, including Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 and Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23. The concert will be broadcasted on a special station in the city, and will be of great interest to music lovers throughout the country.

Professor H. M. Chapman, of Sydney University, will assist in the broadcast of the concert, and will provide an introduction to the works to be performed. His assistance in this work is greatly appreciated.

Lecture by Professor Strong

The function of art, said Professor Strong last night, was to interpret life. In this function, art could take many forms, from the dramatic to the lyrical, and could be found in all aspects of life. In his lecture, Professor Strong discussed the role of art in society, and the different ways in which it could be used. He argued that art was a powerful tool for interpreting life, and that it could be used to bring about social change.

Professor A. T. Strong, who was born in New Zealand, is a member of the University staff. He is also a member of the University's drama department, and has been associated with the University's drama society for many years. His assistance in this work is greatly appreciated.
