POWER DEVELOPMENT.
Marvellous Progress Outlined.
Industrial and Social Possibilities.
Masterly Review by Sir John Monash.

A very important and comprehensive review of the progress in Australia of the work of the Commonwealth Council on Industrial and Social Possibilities was delivered before the Council by Sir John Monash, and is now before the public. The "Advertiser" has been asked to give the substance of the address of Sir John Monash as delivered in Adelaide on Tuesday.

"The Progress of Industry."—Sir John Monash, in his address before the Council, dealt at some length with the progress that has been made in industry in Australia. He said that the growth of industry was due to the fact that the country had been blessed with natural resources that were unequalled in the world. The demand for Australian produce was increasing, and the country was capable of producing a great deal more than it was now doing.

"The Workers."—Sir John Monash, in his review, gave a great deal of attention to the condition of the workers in Australia. He said that the workers were badly treated, and that the conditions under which they worked were not what they should be. He said that the workers were not given a fair share of the wealth that they helped to produce, and that they were not given an opportunity to develop their talents. He said that the workers were not given a fair share of the profit that they helped to create, and that they were not given an opportunity to improve their lot.

"The Future of Australia."—Sir John Monash, in his review, gave a great deal of attention to the future of Australia. He said that the country had a great future, and that it was capable of becoming a great power. He said that the country was rich in natural resources, and that it was capable of becoming one of the great powers of the world. He said that the country was capable of becoming a great industrial power, and that it was capable of becoming a great trading power.

"The Government."—Sir John Monash, in his review, gave a great deal of attention to the Government. He said that the Government was doing a great deal, and that it was capable of doing even more. He said that the Government was doing a great deal for the workers, and that it was capable of doing even more for them. He said that the Government was doing a great deal for the industry, and that it was capable of doing even more for it.

"The Future of the Commonwealth."—Sir John Monash, in his review, gave a great deal of attention to the future of the Commonwealth. He said that the Commonwealth had a great future, and that it was capable of becoming a great power. He said that the Commonwealth was rich in natural resources, and that it was capable of becoming one of the great powers of the world. He said that the Commonwealth was capable of becoming a great industrial power, and that it was capable of becoming a great trading power.

"The Future of the World."—Sir John Monash, in his review, gave a great deal of attention to the future of the world. He said that the world had a great future, and that it was capable of becoming a great power. He said that the world was rich in natural resources, and that it was capable of becoming one of the great powers of the world. He said that the world was capable of becoming a great industrial power, and that it was capable of becoming a great trading power.