UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

BUSINESS MEN'S IDEALS

Leaders of commerce for many years have urged a higher standard of education for their own particular work. Their ideal in a University is that young students should be given an education which enables them to take a Bachelor of Commerce degree. Adelaide University has been urged to appoint a Chair of Commerce, and a sum of £20,000 would meet the requirements of the proposal.

CHAIR OF COMMERCE

EDUCATION

The first of the new University was the first in 1878, when 2,000 in a convention course was announced. Since then, under the leadership of Professor J. E. Biddle, the University has grown to an enrolment of 12,000 students, and the importance of commerce in the University system has increased. Professor Biddle is the author of a text on commercial law.

In 1909, the University Senate asked for funds. The Board of Commercial Studies took the matter up, and decided to establish a new school of commerce. The Board hoped that the school would be able to attract more students, and that it would help to establish the University as a centre of commercial education.

The school was opened in 1910, and has since grown to an enrolment of 2,000 students. The school offers a variety of courses, ranging from basic commercial law to advanced courses in finance and marketing.

The success of the school is due to the dedication of the faculty and the quality of the education offered. The University is proud to have such a strong program in commerce, and hopes to continue to attract students for many years to come.
