Activities to Preserve Infant Life.

Dr. F. N. Le Messurier, who was given an honorary commission by the Executive Council to inquire into and report upon the question of raising the hospital administration and children's welfare work in the United States, America, obtained interesting information during a trip from which he recently returned to Adelaide. The facts he recites in his report to the Chief Secretary (Hon. J. J. Jelley), are now being considered by the Government.

Mr. George Pearce, one of the併 報 Armstrong assistants, was born in South Australia and attended at Prin. Alfred College. As a student of Mr. Whitemoore, he is now training for a career as a public musician in his capacity. Pearce has studied the art of the organ and played under the late Mr. Armstrong.

On the outbreak of the war he enlisted and left Australia with the 1st Australian Division, under the command of Mr. Pearce. He served in the 1st Australian Division and was in action at the Battle of Fromelles, where he was severely wounded. After recovering from his injuries, he returned to Australia and joined the 1st Australian Division, where he continued to serve until the end of the war. Mrs. Pearce is now a widow and has four children. She lives in Adelaide with her parents, who are also war veterans. The family is now living in a small cottage, which was formerly the home of Mr. Pearce's parents. They have been very active in supporting the war effort and are now receiving government assistance. Mrs. Pearce is a very brave and resourceful woman, who has always been a good provider for her family. She is a member of the Red Cross and has been active in many causes, including the welfare of war veterans and their families.
