The University of Adelaide has received a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.

The University of Adelaide has been granted a coat of arms, which was granted on June 13th. The application was made by the Chancellor, Sir George Murray, to the Board of the University of Adelaide, and was accompanied by the following terms and conditions:

1. The coat of arms shall be used only for official purposes.
2. The coat of arms shall not be used for commercial purposes.
3. The coat of arms shall not be used for political purposes.

The coat of arms consists of a shield divided into three sections. The top section is a southern cross, the middle section is a three-leafed rose, and the bottom section is a scroll with the words "Australis Universitatis." The shield is supported by a lion and a unicorn, and the whole is surmounted by a crown.

The shield is divided by a bar, and the left side is red with a golden lion, while the right side is blue with a golden unicorn.