Arrival in Adelaide

CIVIC RECEPTION

Members of the Oxford University debating team, consisting of Messrs. J. D. Woolf, David J. MacDonald, and Mr. C. B. Simpson, left today for New South Wales. Among those present were Mr. G. F. Fraggs (headmaster of the Grammar School), Mr. C. D. Mitchell, and Mr. G. S. E. Taylor. In the absence of the three members of the team, the debaters were received by the Lord Mayor and the other officials of the City of Adelaide. The reception was held in the Town Hall, and the debaters were presented with a number of gifts, including a large trophy. The Lord Mayor presented the debaters with a large trophy and congratulated them on their excellent performance in the debate. The debaters were also given a tour of the city and were shown around the various landmarks. The reception was a great success and was enjoyed by all those present.

LABOUR AND EDUCATION

Comparison of Movements

(By J. Cameron Porter)

One of the South Australian Labor politicians not long ago in the House of Representatives made a speech concerning the nature of the Labor movement. He was speaking about the effectiveness of the Labor movement in providing education for the workers.

As a working-class educator with many years of experience, I can assure you that the Labor movement, particularly in Australia, has played a significant role in educating the working class. The Labor movement has provided schools, workshops, and other educational facilities for the working class, and has played a vital role in the development of the working class.

The Labor movement has always been committed to providing education for the working class. It has provided schools, workshops, and other educational facilities for the working class, and has played a vital role in the development of the working class.

In conclusion, I would like to say that the Labor movement has played a significant role in providing education for the working class. It has provided schools, workshops, and other educational facilities for the working class, and has played a vital role in the development of the working class.
