VITAL SOCIAL ISSUES.

In various parts of the Empire, the raised vital social issues. In our days, the people are becoming more and more conscious of the need for solving these problems, which are the result of the economic and social conditions of the time. The solutions of these issues are of the utmost importance for the welfare of the community.

CHRISTIANITY AND LEISURE.

Mr. Fordey said that the forces that kept the common people down should be eradicated, but in their place, new ones should arise. He believed in the importance of leisure for the development of the individual. He mentioned the example of the Roman Catholic Church, which provided leisure for its members, and maintained that this was an important factor in the development of society.

THE MENACE OF UNDISCIPLINED LEISURE.

Life is a complex of purposes, and to the lax and undisciplined mind becomes a menace, says the Rev. A. Deplique Sykes.

The fourth series of addresses on social questions at the Union Cathedral was delivered by the Rev. A. Deplique Sykes, taking as his text "The menace ye yourselves against, ye doing ye now." In his conclusion, he said that all work and work of God had a sacredness of its own, and that the individual was responsible for his own actions. He ended by saying that the time had come for the people to take hold of their own destinies and shape them according to their own wills.
