RESEARCH IN OBSTETRICS.

Dr. J. B. Dawson's Report Praised.

Referring on Friday to the report by Dr. J. B. Dawson on his investigations into the causes of abortion, a summary of which was published in this paper on Wednesday, the Chief Secretary (Hon. J. Jelley) said that he had found the report to be excellent.

He was particularly impressed by the thoroughness with which Dr. Dawson had investigated the matter, and by the number of hospitals which the doctor had visited. He had also been pleased with the way in which Dr. Dawson had handled his work with the determination and care which were necessary for the good of the people of the State, and the country.

He was very gratified to the Government, which had contributed to the cost of the investigation, and was glad to see that the science of obstetrics had not remained in the hands of the few.

Its potentialities were enormous, and it was hoped, as the report went on to say, that the Government on the least means to be successful in the establishment of the proposed institution.

In conclusion, the Government hoped to be in a position to proceed with the work in the near future.

THE ENNIS MEMORIAL.

A memorial service was held in the City Hall on Wednesday, November 28, in memory of Dr. Ennis, who had passed away last year. The service was attended by a large number of people, and was conducted by the Reverend Father J. O'Reilly.

The service was followed by a banquet at the Town Hall, attended by many of the leading citizens of the city.

Students' Rail Tickets.

A new bylaw, which has been approved by the Government, provides for students to travel at reduced rates, and charges imposed by the South Australian Railway are in accordance with the new bylaw. The bylaw applies to all students, and will be in force from January 1, 1929.
