Mr. Cappelle has just informed me that he has been appointed principal of Prince Alfred College, Adelaide. The appointment was made by the board of directors of the college, and the appointment will take effect on the first day of January next. Mr. Cappelle is a well-known educator, having served as principal of several schools in Victoria and South Australia. He is well respected by his colleagues and students alike. The appointment is expected to be a great boost for the college, which is undergoing a period of growth and development.

The board of directors has also announced that they will be increasing the number of scholarships available to students, with a view to attracting more talented students to the college. The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of academic achievement and financial need, and will cover tuition fees, books, and other expenses.

In other news, the local council has approved a new development plan for the city center, which will include the construction of a new shopping mall and several new residential buildings. The council has also decided to increase the funding for public transportation, with the aim of reducing traffic congestion and improving accessibility for residents.

The weather in Adelaide is expected to remain warm and sunny for the next few days, with temperatures reaching a high of 25 degrees Celsius. The local council has advised residents to be cautious of heat-related illnesses, and to stay hydrated and avoid direct sunlight.
