WRITERS' EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

LECTURE ON AUSTRALIAN LITERATURE.

The second of the free public lectures arranged by the Writers' Educational Association was delivered last evening at the Church of Christ, North Terrace, by Mr. A. M. Winnington Inman, M.A. The lecture was on the first attempt at appreciably serious criticism of Australian literature, and was well attended.

Among the audience were Mr. G. L. Hurley, Mr. C. E. Dunn, Mr. A. M. Winnington Inman, M.A., Mr. A. A. Millhouse, and Mr. R. H. Book, M.A.

SOUND BUSINESS ADVICE.

Mr. Charles Allen, F.A.S.E. (Fellow of the South Australian Branch of the British Association), gave an address on "Sound Business Advice" to members of the Adelaide Branch of the British Association on Tuesday evening. He stressed the importance of sound business advice and the necessity for the business man to have a good knowledge of business methods and practices.

CONFIDENCE ESSENTIAL.

A good business is that of honourable men, said Mr. Allen. And it must be conducted with confidence. The merchant who is not entirely confident in his business, and who is always on the lookout for ways and means by which to improve his business, is not a man of confidence. He is always seeking for ways and means by which to improve his business, and is not a man of confidence.

ABILITY WINS SUCCESS.

Directors were appointed for the new company, and it was usual in the firm or company during the early days, to have other directors, such as in insurance and trading companies, to represent the public interests. The directors were elected by the members of the company.

The new company was a success, and its management was well received by the public. The directors were elected by the members of the company.

The new company was a success, and its management was well received by the public. The directors were elected by the members of the company.

The new company was a success, and its management was well received by the public. The directors were elected by the members of the company.

The new company was a success, and its management was well received by the public. The directors were elected by the members of the company.

The new company was a success, and its management was well received by the public. The directors were elected by the members of the company.