EXTINGUISHING FIRES.

New York, February 2.

Mr. Charles K. Kellogg, a Californian inventor, has invented a device for extinguishing fires by blowing a flame from a large bell with an inside of two feet high and wide of the bell, and it is called a "bellow," like an enlarged violin bow, and is capable of producing a screech like an intense radio wave, which is intensified in the resonance of the object. It was first tested on a street corner, and it proved successful in extinguishing the flames. The device is now being patented in the United States, and it is expected to have a great sale in the coming years.

THE NEED FOR A WIDER VISION.

Great injury has been done to Australia by the unhealthiness and widespread destruction of forests, and it is urgent that the Government should take steps to protect the forests. The forests are a valuable resource for the country, and it is essential that they be preserved. The Government should consider the establishment of a national forest service, and take steps to ensure a proper supply of timber for the future.

PROJECTED Schemes.

The present Conservator of Forests, Mr. J. E. Hill, has suggested several schemes for the protection and management of the forests. These schemes include the establishment of a forest reserve, the appointment of a forest ranger, and the organization of a forest fire-fighting force. The Government should consider these proposals, and take steps to protect the forests.

WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING.

The timber industry is facing a difficult time, with a decline in demand for timber. The Government should take steps to support the timber industry, and ensure a steady supply of timber for the future.
