THE FUTURE OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH.

South Africa.

III.—By A. L. Gordon Mackay.

In the first article in this section, it was pointed out that the day of the solution of the proper government of South Africa has arrived. We have nothing to do is to keep pace with the times.

The system of national economy requires the development of the industrial resources of the world, the importance of which is recognized by all the great nations. South Africa is a country of great industrial resources, and the development of these resources is being undertaken by the British Government.
