GREAT ENGLISH SATIRISTS
Lecture by Sir Archibald Strong

The third of a series of lectures on English literature, given during the period of the 1926-27 academic year at the University of Pennsylvania, was delivered on Tuesday evening. The speaker was Professor Strong, a noted literary critic and biographer. The lecture was presented in the Music Hall, University of Pennsylvania. The audience numbered over 100. The lecturer was Dr. W. H. Vaughan, the president of the university.

The topic of the lecture was "Great English Satirists." It focused on the works of three prominent satirical writers: Jonathan Swift, Oliver Goldsmith, and Henry Fielding. The lecture began with a discussion of Swift's satirical genius and his impact on modern literature. It then moved on to Goldsmith, exploring his lighter touch and the influence of his works on the Romantic era. The final part of the lecture was dedicated to Fielding, whose groundbreaking contributions to the novel form were highlighted.

The evening concluded with a brief question and answer session, during which audience members were encouraged to share their thoughts on the topic. The lecture was well-received, with many attendees expressing their appreciation for the speaker's expertise and engaging presentation style.
