30th April, 1955.

My dear George,

I enquired in the office and I evidently have not had either galleys or page proofs of my contribution to the discussion, and indeed I have had no notification that it was accepted for this purpose. I should naturally be glad to check on what is to appear, and if possible to know in what milieu. I ought to correct the notation, as the letters A, B, C, are used in my original draft in two different senses. I have only recently realized how entangled some of the Americans have become, I think through following certain short cut methods developed perhaps first by one Seagull of Princeton, who may possibly have appeared in this country, for his paper was contributed by Wishart to the Cambridge Philosophical Society's journal.

Sincerely yours,

P.S. I have written to Mind Cook.
