11th March, 1954.

My dear Luca,

Thank you for sending me your typescript, which I am returning herewith, and which I think entirely suitable for publication in Biometrics. I am really a good deal surprised at the accuracy with which it seems to work, though I dare say there may be other cases where it isn't so good. Anyway, it seems an entirely defensible approach for those who fear that personal bias, or the loss of specific information from rare classes, may upset their judgement in pooling.

Thanks also for the news of your wife, pray convey my felicita-ion. I hope she may come to like Genetics better and better.

Yours sincerely,

1 enc.