Dear Professor,

I am sorry I am answering your letter with some delay but I have been unable until now to fix the date for my planned trip to Cambridge.

A symposium for research workers in microbial genetics has been organised in Copenhagen, and will take place there in the last days of March. If you will be in Cambridge by then, I shall take a boat from Denmark to Harwich to spend something like the first week of April at your Department. April seems a very attractive month; besides, I am held here in February by an examination in Genetics, the date of which has not been fixed and by a meeting of the Biometric Society (the first in Italy) which I am trying to organise for the first fortnight of March, but for the exact date of which I am dependent upon some of the participants.

Thank you very much for your offer to pay our reprints of the letter to Nature. I ^{had} asked Mac to pay for them some time ago, because I feared there might have been an overcharge due to resetting - exactly as happened last year. I wrote to Mac about it.

If I remember correctly, the Dean of the College is coming to Italy about Easter time. If he is still interested to see me, I should like to know the dates of his arrival so that, if I were away at that time, I might arrange that he sees my wife in Milan, or communicates with her.

Hoping to see you in April

Yours sincerely Luigi Cavalli -
