Dear Crew,

Thanks for your letter of 24th. Without doubting the potential value of the records of the Army Psychiatrists, I would suggest that the great labour of examining them should only be undertaken with a view to answering specific questions, e.g. such as arise from a consideration of the value or efficacy of the decisions made on the basis of various tests.

As regards my own department, the most I could offer is to supervise work of this kind carried out in my department by employees of the War Office.

Yours sincerely,
