Dear Fisher,

The Army psychiatrists have been testing, classifying and rejecting men and women for three years now and, during this time, have amassed a great number of records and a mass of information that can claim considerable sociological value.

They now wish to have their records examined in order to discover their true worth.

I have suggested to them that you might be sufficiently interested to work upon these records. If this is so, would you call on me here when next you are in town and I would take you along to see the Consultant in Psychiatry - J.R. Rees - whom you probably know - who could tell you of what they have been doing and show you the kind of record they have been keeping.

Yours sincerely,
