November 15th 1943.

My dear Ron,

Thank you for such a happy week-end and all our pleasures together. I enjoyed it—too—so much and felt stimulated and encouraged. It was delightful to be able to see you in Cambridge. You made me feel so comfortable, and it have a room in College, and so near you was a perfect arrangement.

I am immensely interested in the Mouse programme; they represent, moreover, such a remarkable new method in Genetics. You know this. I shall follow The book in all states with the utmost satisfaction. I was very glad indeed to see all the American material: it is so wonderful to have put it. I do hope that the dog difficulties may be satisfactorily resolved in the end.

I will keep the material ready for you when you come for the Darwin Gallery (you can polyptych preparations, and the smaller illustrating the selection book both). You can do kind as to hand) until you are ready for them first. Tell me when the time comes.

Thank you so much for it all.

Ever Yours,

[Signature]