Dear Mr Harrod,

I had a shot at the Times again with a slightly shortened version, following your advice on the paragraph on propaganda; but they won't have it at any price. I am sorry, but not scandalised; they probably know their own business best.

Do you think any heavy journal, like the 19th Century could bear something of the sort, if set out in due form, and, if so, would it do the least good?

Yours sincerely,
