Dear Professor Fisher,

Thanks for your letter and the copy of my paper enclosed. I am glad that both of my other papers may appear in the Annals, and have written to Wilks telling him about the matter.

The Academic Registrar of the University of London has written to tell me that papers accepted but not yet published may be submitted as part of thesis for D.Sc., but that the degree may be conferred only after the actual publication of these papers. I do not think that my works already published are quite enough for the Thesis, and so I am going to prepare a thesis comprised of the following works:

3. "On generalized analysis of variance (I)" (1940, Biometrika)
(5) "On the limiting distribution of the canonical correlations"
(1940, Biometrika) (In press)

Might I do better to add to the above list the two papers that are now at your hand? But that will mean I must do four copies of typescripts of each paper if the two papers aresh. Please write to tell me your opinion on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

P. L. Hsu
