My dear Hutchinson,

I am not really clear as to what you want. To test a bull I suppose you want to compare the milking figure of heifer and dam for as many pairs as he has bred. I like your suggestion of a timetest milking every month during the lactation. The simple sum of the ten test milkings is probably as good a measure of during the lactation as you can get. Your last sentence is an enigma to me, "You can get complete figures for two milkings per day over whole lactation periods", and I suppose this refers only to the herd kept at the research station.

On another question, are you thinking of going back to Trinidad?

Yours sincerely,
