Dear Sir Robert,

I understand that a certain Miss Z.M. Woodhull has left a considerable sum on trust to the Royal Institution "to be applied for research work with the study and practical application of Eugenics and the improving under social control the racial qualities of future generations".

As these aims agree very closely with those for which the Galton Laboratory was founded, I am naturally much interested in the intentions of the Royal Institution with respect to this Trust. I wonder if I could usefully come up and discuss the matter with you when you are ready to do so.

Yours sincerely,
