

March 30. 1936

Dear Dr Schulz,

I am very glad to have your letters of March 19 and 20, and should enjoy making a visit to Chicago about the time you mention. As there will be a number of similar visits for me to make, I am trusting that Dr Brandt will keep them clear of each other, and build up a little programme, so I will not myself suggest an exact date.

As to subject, I should like to leave myself largely in your hands. I am, as you know, much interested in the logic of experimentation, and it might be interesting to try and broach the special statistical difficulties which pervade sociological enquiries, and the extent to which they can be circumvented without experimental control of the material. That is a good suggestion if you want one in which I, and possibly most of those present, are much in the dark and see no clear solution.

Yours sincerely, .
