27th June, 1953.

Dear Todd,

Thanks for your letter and the enclosed paper. I am answering at once without considering the paper, which perhaps you will want me to do rather critically, just to let you know that 300 offprints in all have been ordered at a cost of 33/6d.

I think it is for you to consider what you should do with your paper and Mason's. The more people that know about it the better, but it is a fairly heavy lump to get printed. One place that might be worth trying would be Heredity, of which the editor is Professor Kenneth Mather (Department of Genetics, University of Birmingham, Edgbaston, Birmingham 15), and you might think also that the Statistical Society would find it interesting. Mr J. O. Irwin (London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, Keppel Street, W.C.1) is the editor, and he is perhaps somewhat embarrassed by being a colleague of Bradford Hill.

Sincerely yours,
