26th July, 1957.

Dear Todd,

I have now secured the script of the B.B.C. discussion on smoking, which had not been submitted to me before emission. They have, without referring to me, omitted my answers to two of their questions in which I took the opportunity of stressing the contrast between the larger increase in smoking among women, and the larger increase in cancer among men during the last 50 years. Had they allowed this to go out it would have done something to neutralize the assumption made again and again in the discussion that the increase in cancer of the lung could be ascribed to the increase in the habit of smoking, an inference which is clearly impossible as soon as the sexes are compared. If you would like a copy of the script I will send it along.

Sincerely yours,