Dear Mr. James,

I am enclosing Verschuer's answer to me and a translation. It is, of course, for the Committee to judge whether the matter should be taken up in the way that I suggested, namely that an estimate should be obtained from Verschuer for the most extensive enquiry he can make involving both past and present smoking practice, since the exigencies of war may have forced certain changes against the preference of the individuals concerned, and that if he can offer material of apparent value he should receive a substantial fee for supervising the distribution of the questionnaires and the compilation of the returns.

Sincerely yours,

Enos.
