Finding the Fiduciary:

Recognition of the Director-Shareholder Relationship in Closely Held Companies

Beth Nosworthy
BSc(Ma&Comp Sc) Hons LLB GDLP BCL(Oxon)
Adelaide Law School
Faculty of the Professions
University of Adelaide
31 October 2013
Table of Contents ………………………………………………………………………………… i
Abstract………………………………………………………………………………………….. v
Thesis Declaration……………………………………………………………………………… vii
Acknowledgements……………………………………………………………………………. ix
1 A Fiduciary Duty to Shareholders: An Introduction………………………………………1
  1.1 The Closely Held Company………………………………………………………………. 1
  1.2 Contribution…………………………………………………………………………………. 4
  1.3 Definition of Terms ………………………………………………………………………….. 7
  1.4 Scope ……………………………………………………………………………………… 9
  1.5 Structure…………………………………………………………………………………… 11
2 Defining the Fiduciary Obligation……………………………………………………………17
  2.1 Introduction ………………………………………………………………………………. 17
  2.1.1 The Development of the Equity Jurisdiction in England …………………………… 18
  2.1.2 The Court System in Australia………………………………………………………. 22
  2.1.3 The Development of the Fiduciary Obligation ……………………………………… 23
  2.2 The Australian Approach to the Fiduciary Obligation ……………………………… 33
  2.2.1 The Fundamental Position……………………………………………………………. 33
  2.2.2 The Definition Debate ……………………………………………………………….. 39
    2.2.2.1 Voluntary Assumption …………………………………………………………… 40
    2.2.2.2 The ‘Entrusting’ Element ……………………………………………………… 42
    2.2.2.3 Reasonable or Justifiable Expectation of Loyalty …………………………… 44
    2.2.2.4 Enrichment of the Fiduciary …………………………………………………….. 45
    2.2.2.5 Vulnerability or Disadvantage …………………………………………………. 46
    2.2.2.6 Flannigan’s ‘Limited Access’ justification …………………………………….. 48
    2.2.2.7 Tuch’s ‘Key Features’ …………………………………………………………. 49
    2.2.2.8 The Current Australian Position ……………………………………………… 51
    2.2.2.9 Conclusions on the Definition Debate ………………………………………… 52
  2.2.3 The Proscriptive/Prescriptive Debate ………………………………………………… 53
  2.3 Conclusions ……………………………………………………………………………… 55
3 A Fiduciary Obligation Owed to Shareholders…………………………………………….59
  3.1 Introduction ………………………………………………………………………………. 59
  3.2 History of the Corporate Form and Corporate Law …………………………………. 61
    3.2.1 The Development of the Corporation in England ……………………………….. 62
    3.2.2 The Development of the Corporate Regulation in Australia ……………………. 64
    3.2.3 The Current Structure of the Corporate Form and Regulation In Australia….. 70
  3.3 The Fiduciary Obligation as Owed to the Corporation ……………………………… 71
    3.3.1 The ‘No Profit’ and ‘No Conflict’ Rules ………………………………………….. 74
    3.3.2 The Misappropriation Rule and the Business Opportunity Rule ………………… 74
    3.3.3 Other ‘Fiduciary’ Obligations ……………………………………………………… 76
      3.3.3.1 The Duty to Act bona fide in the Best Interests of the Company ………….. 77
      3.3.3.2 The Fiduciary Duty of Due Care and Skill ……………………………………. 79
      3.3.3.3 The Fiduciary Duty of Disclosure …………………………………………… 79
    3.3.4 Practical Examples: Cooley, Regal, Boardman, Queensland Mines and Peso … 95
  3.4 Fact-based Instances of the Fiduciary Obligation Owed to Shareholders …………. 107
4 Fiduciary Obligations within Corporate Governance ........................................ 149
  4.1 Introduction .................................................................................. 149
  4.2 What is Corporate Governance? .................................................. 150
  4.3 Why is Corporate Governance Important? ..................................... 153
  4.4 Future Methods of Corporate Governance ....................................... 156
  4.5 Current Corporate Governance Philosophy ..................................... 162
    4.5.1 Statutory Directors’ Duties ....................................................... 164
    4.5.2 Insider Trading Provisions .................................................... 170
    4.5.3 Oppression Provisions .......................................................... 172
    4.5.4 Winding Up Provisions ........................................................ 175
    4.5.5 Insolvency Provisions ............................................................ 178
    4.5.6 Australian Consumer Law and ASIC Act Provisions ................. 180
    4.5.7 ASX Listing Rules and Corporate Governance Principles .......... 183
    4.5.8 Business Community Expectations and Norms ....................... 188
    4.5.9 Non-statutory Directors’ Duties .............................................. 190
      4.5.9.1 Contract ......................................................................... 190
      4.5.9.2 Tort ................................................................................. 191
      4.5.9.3 Equity ............................................................................. 191
  4.6 Alternative Courses of Action for Shareholders .................................. 193
    4.6.1 The Oppression Remedy ....................................................... 195
    4.6.2 Winding Up ............................................................................ 197
    4.6.3 The Statutory Derivative Action ............................................. 198
    4.6.4 Remedies for Breach of Fiduciary Obligation ......................... 200
    4.6.5 Pleas for Relief ...................................................................... 203
  4.7 Conclusion .................................................................................... 203

5 How would a Change be Implemented? ............................................... 209
  5.1 Introduction .................................................................................. 209
  5.2 Limitations on Recommendations ................................................ 211
  5.3 Methods of Implementation .......................................................... 213
  5.4 Recognition of amendment via case law ....................................... 215
  5.5 Recognition of amendment via legislation ..................................... 217
  5.6 Conclusions ................................................................................. 224

5 Conclusions .......................................................................................... 227

6 Bibliography ......................................................................................... 235
  6.1 Books, Book Sections, Edited Books .............................................. 235
  6.2 Journal Articles ............................................................................ 240
  6.3 Reports .......................................................................................... 246
  6.4 Cases .............................................................................................. 248
  6.5 Legislation ..................................................................................... 256
  6.6 Other ............................................................................................. 258
The fiduciary obligation is an accepted equitable doctrine within Australian law. Its role within the corporate field, as a duty applied to directors and owed to the company, is also well accepted. This thesis examines the role of the fiduciary obligation in general, and specifically in relation to directors.

The examination begins with the development of the fiduciary obligation in equity, and addresses the difficulty of developing a doctrinal definition for the obligation. This is useful when analysing the most recent High Court decisions on this obligation, and applying the obligation to directors within corporate law, particularly in light of inconsistent use of language in that field.

The thesis clarifies the content of the obligation, and recognises exceptions to the default position that fiduciary obligations are owed to the company. The thesis proposes a definition of a closely held company, which encompasses these exceptions, and recognition of the relationship between directors and shareholders in a closely held company as subject to fiduciary obligations.

Finally, the thesis makes recommendations as to the method of recognising this relationship at law within Australia, to provide greater clarity to both directors and shareholders.
THESIS DECLARATION

I certify that this work contains no material which has been accepted for the award of any other degree or diploma in any university or other tertiary institution to Beth Nosworthy and, to the best of my knowledge and belief, contains no material previously published or written by another person, except where due reference has been made in the text. In addition, I certify that no part of this work will, in the future, be used in a submission for any other degree or diploma in any university or other tertiary institution without the prior approval of the University of Adelaide and where applicable, any partner institution responsible for the joint-award of this degree.

I give consent to this copy of my thesis, when deposited in the University Library, being made available for loan and photocopying, subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth).

I also give permission for the digital version of my thesis to be made available on the web, via the University’s digital research repository, the Library catalogue and also through web search engines, unless permission has been granted by the University to restrict access for a period of time.

____________________________________
Signed

____________________________________
Dated
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Throughout the course of completing my thesis, I have been supported by the advice, assistance and encouragement of all those around me. My supervisors, Associate Professor Christopher Symes, Associate Professor Jim Hambrook and Senior Lecturer David Wright of the University of Adelaide, and Professor Vicki Waye at the University of South Australia have been the source of invaluable counsel through this process, and I am very grateful for their supervision.

At the commencement of my PhD I was fortunate to be supported by the Zelling-Gray scholarship, which enabled me to study full-time and devote my energies to the process. The Thesis Writing Group formed within the post-graduate students at the Adelaide Law School provided an excellent sounding board for many drafts, and I am thankful for their generosity. My development as an academic led to appointment as a lecturer at the Adelaide Law School, where my colleagues have provided me with significant advice, assistance and a shoulder, when necessary. I am indebted to the Dean, Professor John Williams, for his support throughout this process. I am especially thankful to Gabrielle Appleby, David Brown, Anne Hewitt, Suzanne Le Mire, and Bernadette Richards. The assistance of the post-graduate coordinators including Judith Gardam, Judith Bannister and John Gava was invaluable, as were the library staff in the Sir John Salmond Law Library, in particular Margaret Priwer. To academics further afield who were generous with their time, particularly the Honourable Paul Finn and Elizabeth Boros, I extend very grateful thanks.

The personal support provided by my family and friends was, without a doubt, instrumental in the completion of my thesis. I wish to acknowledge my family, Ian and Susie Nosworthy and Jane and Paul Cantale, for their faith in my capacity to complete this project and dedicated hours of proof reading. Last, but never least, my love to my husband, Craig, for his incredible support and dedication to this endeavour. It may have been my thesis, but you were there every step of the way, and I cannot thank you enough.